FOR RELEASE

GIFFELS-WEBSTER LAUNCHES NEW MOBILE-COMPATIBLE WEBSITE

ROCHESTER HILLS, Mich., September 28, 2010 — Giffels-Webster today launched a new website fully compatible with leading mobile platforms. Driven by a visual interface and featuring clean, artistic photography, the site highlights the company's civil engineering, surveying and planning capabilities and expert leadership team committed to building better communities.

"This website accurately reflects the Giffels-Webster point of view and demonstrates how we can help create living and working spaces that enhance quality of life," said Loren Crandell, president, Giffels-Webster. "Not only does it better communicate our personality, it also lets people know we work in nearly every state."

In addition to intuitive architecture and accessible content, social elements are integrated throughout the site so visitors can easily share pages with friends.

Giffels-Webster is a collection of people—civil engineers, landscape architects, planners and surveyors—who choose every day to make communities better. The Michigan-based firm serves public, private, and institutional clients throughout the United States with their infrastructure needs. Since its inception in 1950, Giffels-Webster has evolved to offer a broad scope of services centered on helping clients achieve their project or programming goals, including civil engineering, municipal consulting, planning, land development consulting, landscape architecture, and environmental consulting.
